Sporting Arms Mail Ban Killed

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate rejected today a crime bill amendment that would have banned interstate mail-order sales of shotguns and rifles. The vote was 53 to 29.

The amendment was offered by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., whose brother, Presideht John F. Kennedy, was assassinated with a mail-order rifle. It was a key part of the firearms control legislation urged by President Johnson. The bill itself would prohibit interstate mail-order sales of handguns and ban over-thecounter handgun sales to nonresidents of a state and to per-

The measure, introduced by Rep. Dominic Jacobetti, D-Negaunee, previously had breezed through the House with little opposition.

The bill was advanced to final passage stage in the Senate on a voice vote.

"This is one of the most important bills we've ever had for the development of the Upper Peninsula," Sen. Joseph Mack, D-Ironwood, told the Senate.

It is particularly needed, he said, in Marquette and Gogebic counties where a number of deep shaft mining operations have been abandoned.

Buying Swampland "Outsiders," Mack said, are buying up swamplands and other lands of little value, speculating that they will make a profit on them by resale to mining companies. The bill would allow the mining firms to go to court if they could not agree with the private owners on the value of a tract of land. They could ask for a probate court jury of three or a circuit court jury of 12 to decide on a fair price for the property.

The measure would give the mining companies the same rights now granted railroads to ask for condemnation of property needed for right of way, pipelines, to transport crude oil, for the disposal of waste materials and similar needs.

Sen. Harvey Lodge, R-Waterford, chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, which reported out the bill, previously

Crucified

"They are trying to crucify me!" Rep. Dominic Jacobetti (D-Negaunee) told FORUM's conference on government land use in the U. P. at Northern Michigan University May 10 in explaining the merits of his proposed bill to permit iron mining companies to condemn through court action lands needed for waste disposal.

The act is similar to one in Minnesota and would prevent a price gouge of mining companies for strategic lands needed to dispose of low grade iron ore plant wastes. The issue has become a politically hot one in Marquette County, which Jacobetti represents in the Legislature, with members of his own Democratic party leading the fight against the bill. "Thirty of them are running around trying to crucify me." said Jacobetti. "I'm ready for public debate. Most of the owners of these lands are absentee, with no interest in the Upper Peninsula, and they don't answer mining company inquiries, or, if they do answer, they want $40,000 for forty acres. There have been enormous distortions of this bill."

prevent the mining companies from going into the railroad business or taking agricultural or occupied farmlands.

"The only thing that could be taken now is worthless lands," Lodge said. "This could help save the mining industry in the Upper Peninsula."

27-Member Delta Board On Way Out

Before the day is over, Delta County's present Board of Supervisors may be on the way out.

The County Apportionment Commission was scheduled to meet this afternoon and if the five-member commission can settle on a single plan for reapportionment of the county the wheels will be in motion to elect a new board in November.

State law provides a Board of Supervisors of not less than five or more than 15 members for Delta County.

The courts have ruled it must be elected on a "one man, one to allow supervisors to file for vote" basis from equal popula- election by June 18.

Going To Hospital?

Going to the hospital?

Very likely you are, sooner or later. And when the need arises you'll be so glad that it's there and equipped with so many lifesaving services and with a staff with so many skills.

This editorial is about the local hospital - St. Francis Hospital - and it's about a part of the hospital that the patient doesn't get to see, but should be interested in. We mean the accounting department, which keeps track of the cost of caring for you and of operating the hospital.

The figures supplied by Sister Hildegard, the administrator, and Joseph Lasker, the associate administrator, make a pert comment upon the community's health center in this week being observed nationally as Hospital Week.

They show some trends in health services here, including the familiar one toward increased costs of health care and increased percentage of old people in the hospital beds.

St. Francis Hospital had 5,409 admissions in 1967 compared with 6,033 in 1966 but its average patient load and occupancy rate went up, along with its expenses. Admitted were 4,863 adults and children compared with 5,481 a year ago, and 546 new born, compared with 552. (The Pill remains a strong influence, but is in a settled situation now and not reducing births as drastically as when first introduced.)

Patient Days were 51,130 compared with 48,733, reflecting the bulge that Medicare brought with effect on July 1, 1966. New born accounted for 2,810 of these days compared with 3,184 the year before. (The Pill again.)

Average hospital census was 132 patients, compared with 126, reflecting a high point of 172 and low of 109. Average occupancy was 79 per cent compared with

Littler Entered In Golf Tourney FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) -

Remember Gene Littler, the personable Californian and onetime U.S. Open golf king?

He was, you may recall, the only golfer ever to win the prestigious Tournament of Champions three consecutive years, 1955-1957. He owns 20 PGA trophies in all.

He's alive and well and here for the $125,000 Colonial National Invitation, which begins today, weather permitting. It has been three years since Littler last won a PGA crown, a strange and apparently cruel fate for one of the game's finest shot-makers.

"I've been pretty lucky, I guess, Littler said Wednesday after trimming two shots from Colonial's par 70 course and sharing first place in the proam. "I have no complaints."

Sniping In Riots Is Exaggerated, Claims General

WASHINGTON (AP) - Lt. Gen. J. L. Throckmorton said Wednesday that earlier use of chemical agents such as tear gas would have dispersed looters and rioters sooner during the July 1967 Detroit riots.

Throckmorton, commanding general of the 3rd Army, told the Senate Investigations subcommittee that chemical agents would have been more effective and less dangerous than regular ammunition in dealing with snipers.

Under questioning by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash. acting chairman, Throckmorton said the amount of sniping was exaggerated.

He said that as part of a policy of using minimum force, his initial instructions were for troops to fix bayonets but not to fire weapons except on officer orders. But, he said, troops may fire on their own authority to save their own lives.

Since the Detroit operations, he said, the Army has improved its effectiveness in the civil disturbance field. He said contingency plans should be developed for metropolitan areas where civil disturbance is possible and that tactics should be developed for operating against snipers, looters and arsonists.
